Olympia and its sister cities of Tumwater and Lacey have a diverse economy, fueled by a substantial base of employment in state government. The Community Foundation serves Thurston, Lewis and Mason Counties. Surrounded by mountains and water, the South Sound features picture-perfect views and abundant recreational opportunities year-round. The cities offer a variety of eclectic shopping and dining experiences, while Olympia's westside is a regional shopping destination with numerous national brand stores and the auto mall. Environmentally progressive, tech-savvy, artistic and festive, this unique, vibrant and personality-rich area will delight each of your senses.

With a diverse citizenship ranging from seasoned legislator to street artist and everything in between, the South Sound, including Lewis and Mason counties is a truly unique and welcoming place to visit or call home. The population of the three counties is approximately 420,000, with the cost of living nearly 30% lower than the neighboring Seattle metropolitan area. (Housing costs are approximately 50% lower than Seattle's.)

The area is home to five institutions of higher learning. The Evergreen State College, St. Martin's University, South Puget Sound Community College, Centralia College and Olympic College. Whether you're looking for economic opportunity, cultural events or educational excellence, you'll find it—and much more—in the South Sound.

Mild winters and pleasantly warm summers make the area an ideal place for outdoor recreation. In Olympia, you can "get out of town" without even leaving the city. Olympia maintains 40 public parks for your recreation enjoyment. Public trails lead to saltwater beaches where native tribes once met for potlatches through woods thick with big-leaf maples and towering Douglas firs. Salmon return to Budd Inlet each fall and run the ladder under the 5th Avenue Bridge.

Olympia, Tumwater and Lacey's strategic geographic location along Interstate 5 puts one within two hours or less of incredible regional recreational attractions - from hiking and skiing in the mountains to beachcombing along ocean shores.
